Provider of support services for network infrastructures, Networks First, has signed a new partnership with 8el, a managed communications provider for UK businesses.

Networks First will offer its data engineering and support capabilities to 8el's converged network solutions, providing customers with a one stop shop.

Julian Jackson, director of sales, 8el, said: "Our core values stress the importance of excellent customer experience and we expect the same from our partners. Networks First's vision of supplying exceptional customer support runs parallel with our company ethos."

Peter Titmus, managing director, Networks First, said: "This partnership will combine the experience, expertise and innovation needed to provide exceptional converged network solutions and support services. Networks First prides itself on working exclusively through the channel and this relationship furthers our commitment to working with partners to give the best network support services in the business."
